Giving hope to grieving children

WINSTON'S WISH INTRODUCTORY SESSION

Helping Ensure That No Child Grieves Alone

On average 1 in 29 young people aged 5-16 have experienced the death of a parent or sibling – that's at least one in every classroom. Despite this sad statistic, many teachers and education providers are not equipped with specialised bereavement training to assist pupils in their care.

We are Winston's Wish, the first childhood bereavement charity in the UK and have been supporting grieving children and young people since 1992. This includes helping teachers and other school professionals to provide the best support possible to grieving children and young people, empowering them to face the future with hope.

You are invited to freely attend our Winston's Wish Introductory Session. We help education providers feel better equipped to understand how grief impacts young people, what they can do to help pupils and where educators can go to seek help and advice. This is open to any staff member who works with children and young people in your school.
